TEN THOUSAND TEACHERS FROM ALL OVER AT THE SEASIDE.

Gov. Stokes of New Jersey Unable to Open His Meeting Because of Ulness-Mr. Maxwell Presides-Mayor McClellan to Make the Chief Address To-day

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 3.—Gov. Edward C. Stokes of New Jersey was expected to open the big convention of educators to-night, but did not. President Maxwell announced that New Jersey's Chief Magistrate was ill and at the last moment had telegraphed his regrets. While the audience of 10,000 teachers was waiting for the Governor they were soothed by Tall Esen Morgan's orchestra of sixty Dieces, mostly young women.

Everybody was on the lookout for the Governor, however. A tall man of commanding presence, who took a seat on the platform, received a handclapping. He blushed and hid his embarrassment in a program of the convention. He had been mistaken for the Governor, who is comparatively diminutive.

Dr. James M. Green ventured to fill the Governor's place. He did the honors for Jersey with despatch. He said: "New Jersey was the first State to start public schools; it is the only State in which George Washington was ever historically known to swear."

This put the teachers on good terms with little Jersey, and when Albert G. Lane, a Western educator, responded on behalf of the National Educational Association confidence was restored. Mr. Lane said the times presented unusual opportunities for leadership. "The dangers of unwise leadership," he said, "confront us on every side. They threaten our institutions and the people. 14 YEARS IN A COLOMBIA PRISON. Frank Holley, Formerly of This City, on His Way Back to This Country.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 3.-After spending fourteen years in prison in Colombia, Frank Holley, formerly of New York, is on his way back to this country. An aged mother and a woman to whom he and Catholics must find out what the soluwas engaged are awaiting his arrival. They believed Holley to be dead for fourteen years, and when they received a letter from him some months ago their joy knew no bounds. Holley's aged mother, Mrs. Susan Holley, lives in Otisville, near here, and her only wish is to see her son.

FOUND UNSOUGHT CRIMINAL. Denies Shooting & Cop, but Confesses to Stabbing a Relative.

Detectives Johnson and Hagenberg of Sergt. Eggers's staff heard yesterday that an Italian who answered the description of the man who had shot a special policeman in Brooklyn on Saturday night had been hiding in a cellar at 136th street and Lenox avenue for two days.

The detectives made a search and found the man in a coal bin. He answered the description of the man wanted in Brooklyn, but when he was taken over there nobody could identify him.

On the way back the Italian, who said he was Leonardo Rosetto, confessed to the detectives that he had stabbed his brotherin-law, Giuseppe Luico, in a fight at 234
East 108th street on Saturday night, which accounted for the bloodstains on his clothing. He was held in $1,000 bail by Magistrate Whitman in the Harlem court yesterday afternoon. The brother-in-law was found in the Harlem Hospital with his arm elmost cit off

FIREWATER AFTERWARD? Halfbreed Bitten While Capturing a Snake

That Escaped in Lowell. LOWELL, Mass., July 3.-A halfbreed Indian from Fort Yates, N. D., who is traveling with a circus side show, was bitten by a big snake that escaped from his cage this morning. The reptile got out of his box in the tent and was found by Charles F. Cross, a Boston and Maine Railroad conductor, sunning himself on his front

The police were notified and a big crowd The police were notified and a big crowd collected to watch the cops capture the snake. None of the officers volunteered to go near the reptile. Then the Indian appeared on the scene and claimed to be a charmer, but when he attempted to grab the snake behind the head he was severely bitten on the wrist. He succeeded in getting hold of the reptile on the second trial and restored him to his box in the show tent. CATHOLIC LAYMEN'S FIELD.

POPE'S ENCYCLICAL ON ITALIAN POLITICS RECEIVED HERE.

Social Improvement May Justify Departure From Raie of Non-Interference in Italian Politics Established by Predecessors-Bishops to Guide and Advise

The Pope's recent encyclical allowing Catholics to take part in Italian politics was received here yesterday. It is in Italian and is addressed to the Bishops of Italy. In it the Pope defines Catholic action as the effort to renew all things in Christ, to promote Christian culture and to fight anti-Christian civilization by all legitimate means. Thus understood, Catholic action, he says, is peculiarly the affair of the Catholic laity. This help the Church has at all times accepted from her children, but in different forms according to the needs of the times. The Church has clearly shown during long centuries and in all cases a wonderful capacity for adapting herself to changing circumstances.

The conditions necessary to make Catholic action really effective are then outlined. Above all things, says the Pope, men expect from a Catholic character manly virtue. The works to which Catholics devote themselves must correspond to the requirements of society to-day; they must be adapted to promote the moral and material interests of the people and must be readily understood and welcomed by the political life of the country by means of representation in Parliament.

The ifficultd problems of modern life demand prompt and sure social solution, tion is and make it operative with the aid of an energetic, tactful, intelligent, well of an energetic, tactful, intelligent, well crganized propaganda directly calculated to meet opposition. The most earnest demand of Leo XIII. in the encyclical "Rerum Novarum" was the practical solution of the social question on the ground of Christian principles. For this object there must be perfect unity among Catholics.

Here the Pope recommends the German Catholic Volksverein or People's Association, and the Unione delle Opere Economiche. Catholic action must be made effective by all those practical means which the advance of sociology, experience and the conditions of social and public life suggest.

Weighty reasons dissuade his Holiness from abandoning the rules laid down by his predecessors. Pius IX. and Leo XIII.. by which the participation of Catholics in the parliamentary elections is forbidden in Italy. But other equally weighty reasons concerned with the highest interests of society, which must be safeguarded at any cost, may bring it about that in special cases the rules referred to will be dispensed with, especially when Catholics are convinced that such a dispensation is absolutely necessary for when Catholics are convinced that such a dispensation is absolutely necessary for the salvation of souls and the highest interests of the Church.

His Holiness then advises the Catholics to prepare themselves for public life and to form electoral associations and other organizations having for their aim the welfare of the people. He recommends the holding of meetings and declares that in the work that is to be done, while due freedom is to be allowed, the advice and leadership of the Bishops is necessary. As to the priests, they must be above parties and must be careful not to compromise their person and dignity. They are therefore to take no part in the political and social organizations except after mature reflection and with the assent of their Bishops. their Bishops.

SAUCY LAWYERS SUSPENDED. Watt and Dohan of Philadelphia Can't Prac tise in the United States Court Here. Lawyers George W. Watt and James M. Dohan of Philadelphia have been suspended so far as this circuit of the United States court is concerned. The order was filed yesterday in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, signed by Judges Townsend and Coxe, Circuit Judges and Holt, District Judge.

Watt and Dohan were retained by John Du Bois of Du Bois, Pa., in a suit brought in the United States Circuit Court many years ago against the cities of New York and Brooklyn for damages in the infringement of a cofferdam patent in the building of the Brooklyn Bridge. A master in chancery decided what fees on a contingent basis were due the lawyers employed by Du Bois. Judge Lacombe confirmed his findings and was in turn confirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals, in spite of the contention of Watt and Dohan that he had been unfair. The lawyers tried to have Judge Lacombe impeached; indulged, it is alleged, in impertinent correspondence with the Federal Judges, and finally filed a pamphlet "attacking the personal character and judicial integrity" of the Judges of the Circuit Court of Appeals. They were directed to show cause ton days ago why they should not be disciplined, but did not
